

Poetic experiments by students of 2L1

At the end of a longer unit on poetry - including, amongst others, classic and contemporary authors, poetry slammers and hip hop artists - the students of 2L1 taught by Mr Pfefferle had their own turn at creating poetry. Enjoy reading some samples of their creative output in English:

The rain

I bring life
To earth and everything you see. I water the plants and every single tree. I fill all streams, rivers and all lakes; the food you eat, the food I make. I'm the lifeblood of all living things, I'm the one who gives, the one who brings. And still you call for the sun and damn the grey, wish for blue sky and for me to go away

*

by Franziska Biber

memories:

memories:

some people might say you need to change but if i'm being frank, i don't wanna change. cause these memories are all i will have if people might leave or decide to stay back. this life is all that i'll have after all so why should i decide to forget what once made me cry?
these memories will help me on my way towards the end i can't really stay the way i was when it all began.
life sometimes just happens, right?

on wednesdays, we wear pink when my alarm clock wakes me up on wednesday 6am another day begins on which i'm wearing pink.

if you refuse to do so, too you can't sit with me.
go and find another table where your choice of clothing is fully up to you.
no matter if fuchsia or magenta strawberry or rosewood watermelon or bubblegum salmon or flamingo what i'll wear is to be found within this window.
every week, something new and fetch is created, based on the topic.
wearing the same thing twice makes me thaasophobic.
the plastics legacy lives on in me as long as pink defines my tee. cause fashion is a choice you make and sometimes it's a risk you take.
still, pink is worn every wednesday no matter what my friends say by Rebecca Wilhelm

The northern light

I exist in different colors
I'm green
I'm blue
I'm pink
No matter in what color I appear I shine and sparkle bright
In the sky of the night I am a northern light

Likes; or a guarantee of worthiness

Monday, 6pm I click on post.
Checked the time where my followers browse the most.
My dull eyes, locked on the screen
No notification nowhere to be seen.
1 minute, zero likes My palms and hands drowning in sweat
"They think I'm ugly", I start to bet.
2 minutes, zero likes My knees keep shaking, I can't control Anxiety's eating me like a black hole.
There! A little sign pops up on my display, all of the sudden my worries go away.

by Franziska Biber

Your life

Your whole life
Someone told you what to do
Your whole life
You followed someone else's orders
Your whole life
You only did what made others happy
This stops now Break free from whatever holds you back Start living your life and do what you love Be selfish for once and think about what you need

And what makes you happy Live every day as if it were your last Live to the fullest Because maybe Tomorrow you won't get another chance to

by Chiara Christiani

Please, leave me

I should have never let you close to me
What happened to us on this summer night by the sea
I looked at you and tried you out I loved the taste when I touched you with my mouth How crazy that I forgot you would kill me Or that we would never be a he and she How crazy that I thought you could solve my problems Instead they became even bigger In the technical world they would call you the trigger I became addicted to you without noticing it As if you fall in love with a summer hit Now I need you all the time around me
But not because I love you, quite the opposite I hate you, you ain't worth more than shit.
Without you life is torturing With you life is torturing Cigarette, oh cigarette, my dear,
I want you to disappear.

Moon

Full
moon is coming soon
-Moon

Dear Earth,
I see all the pain,
all the pain.
Wars, famine and pitiful human beings,
Trash swimming in the sea,
That's all I'm seeing.
I don't want to see it anymore.
I don't want to see this world.
Dear Earth,
I wanna see freedom,
I wanna see a better version of you.
-Moon

by Mara

Haubrich

Forgetting - Nothing

Forgetting

What does it mean, to forget?

Not remembering anymore,

Anything or anyone.

Not knowing, how beautiful life is,

How to live.

Not knowing how.

Not knowing, how to love.

How to love you.

Nothing

Nothing in my memories

Nothing in my mind

Nothing in me

Nothing

Nothing to speak about

Nothing to think of

Nothing to feel

Nothing.

by Mara

Haubrich

?

?

You built your empire like children do on the floor

How you prey upon the poor, you don't care anymore

This feeling of satisfaction, you won't give it up that easy

And so you finally lost all of your empathy, how creepy

Pure egoism has made us so blind

Mother lived a very good life until she got this disease

Eventually, this epidemic will bring her down to her knees

So it's all senseless, we won't change our mind

Ice melting, nature and animals exploited

Extinction of species, empathy avoided

Repetitive cries for help, but we ignore the message Earth needs us to ease her sorrow Her death means: There's no tomorrow
We won the lot of this whole wonderful world in wreckage

Late night talks

Late night talks,
Long beach walks,
Or dancing along
To an old song
Makes it worth it.
To cross all our limits Until reality hits,
And I realise it can't stay like this

Time spent with you, Means happiness,
Living in excess Although it's ephemeral.

The fear of losing a friend

Now I am standing here Feeling fear
Will you be laughing at me?
That would be easy
I just want to be at home
Just me alone
Let me go
So I can feel the sorrow
You think you're cool?
Well, no, you're a fool!
I'm giving you my heart Don't tear it apart I'm afraid of your reaction Will it destroy my passion?
You're acting weird I'm feared
Can you explain

Because I'm feeling pain Will this be the end?
But you're my friend Without you I feel lonely Like no one knows me You're important to me
Please don't ignore me Sure you're afraid But like that all our memories fade!

by Lara Bischoff Jimenez

Love

I lost hope in men
I can't cry no more cried out all my tears Sadness overwhelms
My heart got broken again and here I am a broken sad woman
I lost hope in men

Be Thankful

Be thankful for your look,
The time it took
To change yourself,
To convince everyone else.
It's OK to be different A problem which is current Underneath this silhouette Is the person I met

Be thankful for growing up Puberty is just a step of make-up Before you become an adult Being responsible is the result

Be thankful t'go to school Learning an entire pool

Of things you will never ever need again Thinking this is useless, but still breaking the chain

Be thankful for your friends Just need your knee to bend You quickly see who they are These people leave you a scar

Be thankful for your family
Not to be poor, rich or wealthy But to have them on your side
In a way or another until you die

Be thankful for your high hopes Not to be good as people told Gone wrong and lose Time to create some news

Be thankful to be healthy Who knows what will happen until you're twenty But for now, newborn babies suffer Must be making you tougher

Still feeling like burnt in a cage
But with age Know, you only live once Doesn't matter how it sounds

Love

Do you know that feeling?
You were lonely for a Long Time
Then: A new Person and a Meeting
A beautiful day, a lot of Sunshine You're hanging out, maybe eating Maybe at the Cinema, maybe just chilling And you Start liking her, more and more And she starts liking you, more and more

Then there is that Point:
You can't wake up without her You can't Walk without her You can't live without her

Your life is her life
And if you're lucky, hers is also yours
But if you're unlucky, there is that day when she goes
And Then for a long Time, you'll Be lonely

My one and only

A never-ending love story holding you in my hands And even though I am sorry
No one else has any chance I give you all my attention You make me the happiest person on earth and did I already mention?
I do really love you with all my heart!

I don't look at others while talking I sometimes even fall when I am walking But why should I spend attention to the scene when I can just look at the screen

The King on the throne is nothing without his crown And I hope I have shown that I need you, my phone!

I should write a poem, for school

I should write a poem, for school
I should paint with these words like Shakespeare I should evoke storms of emotions Love joy sadness pride passion rage shame excitement fear anger surprise I should satisfy our deepest yearnings I should identify our biggest fears I should arouse our last spark of hope And all this at the push of a button
Even though I'm not Shakespeare Not even an artist
Even though I cannot fill our empty heads with some humanity

But I have to Just have to Because it's for school

And this poem will get a number This number will tell me if I passed or not If I'm good or not How can somebody ask for a firework when it's not New Years' Eve
When there is no firework to enflame
And then divide it in heaven, purgatory and hell?
How can someone get this much power?
If this someone isn't even Shakespeare himself?
How is it possible to mark art?
There is no right or wrong
No dark or bright Not light or shade
No first or second-class

Well, I thought I should just write a poem for school But I don't think that this is possible money a means of payment, but not only a form of power if you look closely a currency in circulation the one true ruler of the nation the base of everything we can relate to the medium of exchange leading us straight to crimes that will come back to us sooner or later just like a boomerang from the equator so be careful about what you consume it causes more than you may think but outside of your room.

by Rebecca Wilhelm